

Hello

It's now the time of year that starts to give us hope that the cold and the wet of winter are not actually as endless as they seem.

In school, the chances that the elusive sun and blue skies bring, are seized on wholeheartedly (even if coats are still needed)! Playing out in the spring sun and blustery March winds, lunches outside when it's warm enough, the opportunity for the teachers to take the learning outside; Rivington gives us these chances.....in our beautiful surroundings.

Our children can learn and grow, observing, appreciating and understanding; developing a love of the world around them and the curiosity always to ask 'why' and 'how'.

A fabulous starting point for those 'visions of the future'.

All good wishes

Mrs LJ Carter-Clavell
